The Oregonian.

PUBLISHED SUNDAY SEPT 22

Southern Oregon papers credit the Alpine Club with its efforts in the endeavor to stop the killing of deer or their skins.

Over the hill from the city recently remarked that deer bears a pleasure to a face to an old man as sleep in one who is tired.

Dr. S. T. Larketer has bought the Holiday Independent of W. J. Jones. The paper will be conducted with W. J. Jones as editor.

A man has been arrested on the charge of having sold to the warden northeast of this city a fowl, who which resulted in his being arrested. Let the good work go on.

The citizen of Yamhill has his weather turned anxious toward the lowering skies. The country fair is advertised to begin at McMinnville on Tuesday the 24th inst.

Corporal Turner says he is taking a much-needed rest. At least the intonations of his too-often tongue have not reverberated across the continent for several days past.

Rev. Alpheus Le Roy, who was one of the members of the "Light Brigade" and participated in the charge at Balaklava is lecturing in Oregon. Mr. Le Roy left the army in 1870 and came to America.

It is said that the Brotherhood of Base ball players proposes to form a trust. If the regulation that no one is adopted and the product on of baseball players restricted the combination will prove a blessing.

M. L. Pape, who has conducted the Deseret Leader for four years past has retired from the paper, which now will be published by Harry Pape, Jr. Mr. Pape is a man of industry and cut and has made a good paper.

The parishes of the various churches of the city will be filled by visitors to-day, and topics somewhat out of the regular line will be presented. The regular church no less in this issue will introduce the several speakers to our people.

The industrial fair to be opened next Thursday will be the greatest attraction that has ever been presented in the Northwest. When industry and experience combine in a display of their skill the result can not be less than unique.

Dempsey is booked for another fight with Jimmie. There is good material in him, and another whipping would probably bring it out by taking the remaining prize ring content out of him and giving him a chance to settle down and earn an honest living in a decent way.

The instrument of the serial story, "A Strange Discrepancy" which should have appeared to-day in the paper has not been received from the author. The delay is unacceptable, and is an annoyance to the publishers, Fox, Sennett &amp; Co., as it is to its readers.

A band of about 150 Preston county W. Va. miners picked and sold 300 gallons of blackberry during the past session. The band, trading industry, shamed the complaining neighbors of the man who in full possession of his faculties, protests that he can do nothing to do it.

The cost of the Layton civil war will be about $10,000.00 a big sum to pay for a little war. Raging insurrections does not pay, as well as raising sugar and if the Hovingtons are disposed to profit by their less than all will attempt to diversify their industries in that way again.

Two reputable farmers of Yamhill county got into trouble about a straw stack. A few days ago fell upon each other with their pocket knives in the endeavor to cut out a settlement. They carried with painful effect but they survived the result the courts will have to act at the set moment.

A recent letter from Beauvoir, Miss., states that Jefferson Davis is in better health than he has been for ten years. It is a little singular that, while almost the last remaining contemporary of Mr. Davis has gone to Waverly in Lydia's fields he should still stand erect as a picture of political ambiguity and Jeffersonian democracy.

The earth is the Lord's but the ear line follows have taken the streets, and now they are going to take the overhead wires for poles and wires for their motors. No city has rights that street grabbers of the ear line can't bend to respect. But the city is in fault that allows these valuable privileges to speculators, without requiring payment of money for them.

A prominent citizen of La Porte, Ind., was granted a divorce for the sixth time in the state circuit court there a few days ago, and at once procured his contempt for the decree of freedom by marrying No. 7, a girl of 16. He probably has lawyers, a preacher by his side, and has no unit rulers' bills to see to it that she is to be the ex-penses contingent upon his uxorial taste.

Her Majesty, Queen Victoria must be immensely busy with family matters. There may be another royal wedding on the horizon, or perhaps, he is a young man with one eye on an exposition of another birth in the Battemberg family. Whatever may have been the case, he has lately been remiss in a sacred duty to suffering humanity. Two whole days have passed and she has not telegraphed her sympathy to the Quebec authorities.

One of the greatest writers of the age in a plea for charity and toleration says it is ungrateful for a religious man to view an irreligious one with alarm or aversion or any other feeling than regret and hope and brotherly commiseration. If he seek truth blindly it is to be pitied, if he seek not truth but dogmatic error he is to be pitied still more. The banishment of intolerance and the adoption of a sentiment like this by the churches might make a Christian even of an inglorious.

Secretary Noble says that Tanner construed a law as unconstitutional without consulting the proper department lawyers, and discriminated against the great mass of passengers throughout the country and that instead of depositing of original passenger claims he relied upon the remittances. The figures show that during the last nine months of General Blod's administration he granted $30,000 of general bonds, and that during the first five months of Tanner's administration he granted $20,000.

The London docks the scene of the recent great strike are immense structures that represent millions of dollars in construction and form in combination the greatest docking system in the world. It is estimated that their en cost is not less than $100,000,000 and the claims of the dock companies during the strike that they do not yield direct profits a proportion to this great cost is probably true. Indirectly, however, they promote British commerce, and are in this way profitable to their own.

The Albert dock, opened in 1880, is a splendid stretch of waterway almost three miles in extent with a range of more than a mile of iron warehouses containing every facility for commerce. When the enormous volume of trade that passes through these docks daily is considered, the paralyzing effect of the great strike, stopping in a manner all industry may be understood. The pressure upon the dock companies from without and the clamor of complaint from those who stand from within represent forces of such magnitude that it is wonderful that the companies were able to hold out a single day.

According to a recent decree no legislator can be an inspector of a sector of schools in Italy. This decision is based upon a recent law to the effect that the local control of schools should be in the hands of heads of families who would naturally take a deep interest in them, and it would not especially apply to clergymen, except for the fact that these are celibates. Of course, the leading object is to cut the schools loose from clerical oversight and influence and this law was provided as the least offensive way to accomplish it.

Now let the country who scents the power and influence of civilization upon the aborigines, hide his dimmed head and obeying the portion of the Society for the Promotion of Culture Among the North American Indians." A "Kloofchman" engaged in the Indian's occupation of hop picking in Eastern Washington committed suicide a few nights ago by hanging himself to a tent pole. No particular's are given but she had probably seen enough of the Indians at dependent upon working for a living to induce the belief that life is a failure.

It is remarked that the ratio between the number of immigrants and the total population is constantly decreasing. We are several 500,000 in one year when we number only 30,000,000. If that ratio were maintained for many years it would undoubtedly be something formidable. But we are now receiving much less than 300,000 yearly and we number 60,000,000. Our rate of increase by births in excess of deaths is about two per cent, or at the present time not far from 1,300,000 a year. The increase by immigration is not one third of the natural increase. By the year 1900 it probably will not be one fourth.

President John Adams was recently quoted in the Oregonian as authority for the statement that the dread and distrust of the English church (it) by the dissenting of the Pilgrims, the Languid, the Scotch and Scotch Irish Presbyterians had quite a much to do with the revolt against the king as the passage of the stamp act. After King George had offered a reward for the heads of the heads of Adams and John Hancock, the Rev. Miles Cooper, president of King's College, New York City, had to fly by night to the King because a British man was a man of capital offense was the defense of King's principles in the Church of England, then, of course, as government established in the colonies. At Bristol, or Westminster, Vt., another clergyman was hung up to a hilt, probably by the sect of his beliefs. The Protestant Episcopal Bishop of Connecticut was treated with great severity by the Scotch and Irish Presbyterians and the Congregationalists or to speak more accurately the Jonathan Edwardsites. Newspapers of that day, Rutland Standard and Windsor and Windsor Weekly, published the facts.

The instrument of the serial story, "A Strange Discrepancy" which should have appeared to-day in the paper has not been received from the author. The delay is unacceptable, and is an annoyance to the publishers, Fox, Sennett &amp; Co., as it is to its readers.

The jury in the case of James Turk, the stable boarding house keeper tried on Friday for harboring a deserting seaman, had been out twenty-four hours and forty-five minutes when Judge Stearns called them into the criminal court at 5:30 yesterday at 10:00. A few questions addressed to the jurors elicited the fact that it was impossible to agree or to verdict there having been no change in the standing of the vote for nine hours, so Judge Stearns discharged the jury.

The first ballot stood eight for conviction and four for an acquittal. At 10 o'clock Friday the man deserted the acquittal side and the vote was reduced to three to four in their favor. The ballot was then taken again. Three ballots were taken together, but showed no change. Those who held out for Turk's acquittal maintained that no evidence had been adduced to prove that Turk was guilty as charged.
